Franco Battiato (born 1945 in Sicily, Italy) is an Italian singer-songwriter, composer, filmmaker and painter. He is considered one of the most original personalities in Italian music from the 1970s to now. Battiato's songs are dreamy, controversial collages of images and sensations, very experimental and convoluted, rich of esoteric, philosophical and East Asian religious themes.

Mal d'africa / The Final Prey It's impossible to approach this 1968 mondo film without reference to Africa Addio . This is because writer-director Stanis Nievo was production manager on it and looks to have constructed his own largely out of material shot for Giacopetti and Prosperi's film but never actually used.

The largest segments of modern Africa's economies are agriculture and mining, with tourism growing in some areas. Manufacturing industries have grown large enough to ship products across the planet, and the oil export revenues of Angola, Libya and Nigeria have the potential to change the lives of millions. Today the 54 countries of Africa have great potential, but this question must be asked ...

I live with this feeling for some years now. At the beginning it did not allow me to think of nothing but to quickly go back to Kenya, how to move there, how to stay in touch with the people I met during my trip trip, how to help, how to feel less futile and useless ... Yeah, because going back to work at the Palau de les Arts in Valencia after the stay in the bush was a very hard and ...

Wiki: Mal d'Africa refers to the feeling of nostalgia of those who have visited Africa and want to go back (as saudade is the nostalgia of Brazil). So, I'm back. Well, at least physically. Emotionally a large part of me is still in Botswana, for after nine glorious days immersed in nature, off the grid [...]
